Hi Jan, the model year and build year are defined in an international standard ISO 10087.

They are defined as

The month and year of manufacture date shall be no earlier than the date of construction or when assembly began and no later than the date the craft leaves the place of manufacture or assembly or is placed on the market. The month of manufacture shall be indicated by the code from Table 1, the year of manufacture shall be identified by the last numeral of the production year.

The model year indicates the year when the specific craft is intended to be placed on the market.

Kind regards

Ross Wombwell

Hello.

I am reaching out to you for assistance. We are a Ukrainian public organization in the field of small boats. Our colleague purchased a boat with the hull number BIYB25CRI293. When re-registering it to a new owner, the registrar wants to enter that the boat was manufactured in 1992, but our colleague bought it as a 1993 model. Please resolve our issue - what year should this boat be registered as? And what is the difference between the year of manufacture and the model year?

Thank you
Jan Jasinsky
